Each ward is expected to benefit from a minimum intervention of:

₦10,000,000 per ward

through:

- Enterprise support
- Skills development
- Business empowerment
- Equipment and tools
- Local women cooperative support

Community-led economic opportunities

This ensures that mobilisation is backed by direct impact and visible empowerment at community level.

By connecting women to economic opportunity while strengthening community participation, the movement builds trust, loyalty, visibility, and sustainable long-term engagement.

Core Objectives

The initiative seeks to:

5. Increase women's participation in governance and political structures

6. Strengthen grassroots ownership of government reforms and interventions

8. Create a sustainable national women mobilisation structure beyond 2027

Expected Outcomes

The movement is expected to deliver:

The Power of 10 Million therefore represents more than a rally.

It is a strategic national women-led mobilisation and empowerment movement designed to organise women, strengthen communities, deepen inclusion, build economic opportunity, and galvanise 10 million votes in support of His Excellency, President Bola Ahmed Tinubu, GCFR, while establishing a sustainable legacy of women-led participation and national development beyond 2027.

"When women speak with one voice through a unified charter, they shape the direction of national development and inclusive progress."

NIGERIA WOMEN'S CHARTER FOR NATIONAL DEVELOPMENT: A UNIFIED CALL FOR EQUITY, INCLUSION, AND PROSPERITY

Since Nigeria's return to democratic rule in 1999, the journey for women has been defined by a resilient struggle against systemic exclusion. Despite serving as the backbone of the nation's economy and the heart of its communities, We have have remained largely on the periphery of decision-making, hampered by glass ceilings in governance and structural gaps in economic opportunity. For twenty-six years, the promise of parity has been deferred, but the era of silent endurance has finally ended.

Under the banner of "One Voice, One Movement and One Choice," We have reached a historic turning point, transitioning from a collection of fragmented voices into a formidable, unified voting bloc and a social force that demands a seat at the table. This Charter is our collective mandate—a blueprint to move beyond tokenism toward a nation where the contributions of women are codified into the very fabric of national development.

We, the women of Nigeria—representing all 774 Local Government Areas, across all professions, faiths, and generations—present our requests, hopes, and demands with hearts full of love for our nation. We are the ones who have borne the people of Nigeria, nurturing every citizen from their first breath, tilling the fields to feed our communities, and managing our homes with tireless dedication. We have accepted our responsibilities with grace, as ordained by the Almighty, carrying the weight of our nation's future in our arms and on our backs. We stand here today acknowledging the long strides, the quiet struggles, and the selfless sacrifices of our foremothers, whose courage paved the way for the freedoms we hold today. We do this for the sake of our children—our daughters and our sons—who will inevitably carry our lessons and our triumphs into the future. It is for their tomorrow that we present this Charter: a collective mandate for urgent action to unlock the full potential of every Nigerian woman.

This Charter builds on decades of advocacy and policy articulation by Nigerian women under the leadership of diverse professional groups, coalitions, and civil society organizations, including previous Women's Charters of Demands and the Womanifesto. It consolidates these contributions into a single, coherent national agenda that reflects the collective voice, aspirations, and priorities of women across all sectors of society.

This Charter is firmly anchored in Nigeria's obligations and commitments under a comprehensive framework of international, regional, and national instruments advancing the rights and welfare of women, children, families, and other vulnerable groups, including women with disabilities. These include globally recognized frameworks such as the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination Against Women (CEDAW), the Beijing Platform for Action, and the Sustainable Development Goals; regional instruments including the African Union Agenda 2063, the Maputo Protocol, and the ECOWAS Gender and Development Framework; as well as key national laws and policies such as the National Gender Policy (2021–2026), the Violence Against Persons (Prohibition) Act, the Discrimination Against Persons with Disabilities (Prohibition) Act, and the Child Rights Act. Collectively, these frameworks provide a robust normative and legal foundation for advancing gender equality, social protection, and inclusive national development in Nigeria.

We acknowledge and commend the forward-looking leadership and Renewed Hope Agenda of His Excellency, President Bola Ahmed Tinubu, GCFR, which demonstrates a clear commitment to advancing the cause of women, children, families, and other vulnerable groups.
The Nigeria Women's Charter is Presented as follows:

Budget of Inclusion: dedication of 1% of the National Budget to the fundamental infrastructure and resourcing of the Ministry of Women, Families, and Children, an investment in the heartbeat of our nation—ensuring that the dignity, economic agency, and protection of every woman and child are fully resourced across all 774 Local Government Areas, anchored by the formal activation of Directorates for the Care and Safeguarding of Children and the Dedicated Protection of Women."

Political Inclusion: Implement a minimum of 35% affirmative action across all appointive and elective positions with a clear, time-bound roadmap toward full gender parity.
Legislative Representation: Establish mandatory quotas to guarantee at least two female Governors nationwide, one female Senator per State, and three female State Assembly members per State.

Governance Quota: Mandate a 50/50 gender parity quota for all cabinet positions, board appointments, and headship of government agencies to ensure women are at the core of executive decision-making.

Electoral Integrity: Overhaul political party structures to eliminate systemic barriers, ensuring equitable access to financing and transparent candidate selection processes.
Economic Sovereignty: Establish a five-year Zero-Interest Credit Facility to remove the barrier of high-cost capital and accelerate women's access to enterprise growth.

Public Investment: Mandate a 35% allocation of public investment toward women-led initiatives in Agriculture, Health, Education, and Technology.

Affirmative Procurement: Fully enforce policies that guarantee women-owned enterprises equitable access to government contracts and procurement opportunities.
Technology & STEM: Launch the Fund for Women and Technology to provide digital literacy, infrastructure support, and STEM education for girls, children, and women.
Care Economy: Enact a Care Economy Law to recognize unpaid work and provide legal safeguards and social security for those caring for children, the elderly, and persons with disabilities.

Family Cohesion: Announce the Decade of the Family to signal the administration's focus on providing targeted support and strengthen social cohesion for Nigerian families as the foundational unit of a stronger nation that can transform the economic and social outlook of our Motherland.

Lifespan Wellbeing: Integrate holistic mental health and reproductive care into primary healthcare, supporting women through every stage from menstruation to menopause.
Justice & Safety: Fully operationalize the SGBV State of Emergency and establish specialized Family Courts and an Equal Opportunity Commission to uphold gender justice.

This Charter transcends a list of demands; it is a fervent prayer and a declaration of partnership anchored on mutual accountability. The millions of women represented herein constitute a critical mass committed to advancing national development, strengthening democratic participation, and driving sustainable progress.

We affirm that a nation that empowers its women secures its future. A Nigeria that works for women is a Nigeria that works for all.

Our resolve is unwavering, our movement is united, and our moment is now.
